PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

Product designer with 6+ years on the two problems retail actually lives or dies on: helping people find the right thing, and getting them through checkout without giving up.

I rebuilt a 20-22 step ordering journey into a focused flow and took completion from 62% to 78%. I redesigned catalog and search for a learning marketplace and lifted enrollments 18% quarter over quarter. I cut an appointment booking flow from six steps to four, 71% to 83%, and proved the direction with a 5,000-user A/B test rather than an opinion.

I've also built design systems from scratch three times - at FuelBuddy across consumer, B2B, franchise and field products, at I-DOD, and as part of Uncover's identity. That is the same discipline as keeping one language consistent across app, web, and a store.

Alongside product I shoot and edit. At Crevia I currently produce product imagery, video and web assets across five brands. For a home-furnishing business where the product photography is the product experience, that's a useful second skill in the same person.

CORE SKILLS

Product & UX: User flows, information architecture, catalog and search, ordering and checkout journeys, wireframing, prototyping, usability testing, A/B testing, analytics-led iteration

Systems: Design systems from scratch, Figma component libraries, tokens, states, documentation, developer handoff, responsive and accessibility (WCAG) awareness

Omnichannel & Ops: Consumer apps, B2B web products, operational and fulfilment tooling, order management, live tracking, admin consoles

Visual & Content: Product imagery, photography, video editing, brand and social creative, layout and typography

WHAT I'D BRING TO IKEA

- Catalog and search is my actual track record. AcadPlaza's course discovery was a catalog problem - browse, filter, compare, commit. Enrollments up 18% quarter over quarter. That is the same shape as helping someone find a sofa.
- Checkout completion, measured. 62% to 78% on a 20-22 step ordering journey at FuelBuddy, and 38% fewer payment transaction errors through wallet and spend-control work. I optimise the boring middle of the funnel, which is where retail revenue leaks.

- Design systems that survive scale. Built from scratch at FuelBuddy across consumer, B2B, franchise and field products - different users, one language. IKEA's problem is that at a much larger size.
- Evidence over taste. 5,000-user A/B test, usability sessions with 12 patients and 8 doctors, analytics-led iteration. I bring findings, not preferences.
- Product imagery in the same hire. I currently shoot and edit product visuals across five brands at Crevia. For home furnishing, where the image is the product experience, that closes a gap most product designers leave open.
- India-based, familiar with scale. Delhi NCR, and I've designed for both Indian and UAE markets - two audiences with very different expectations of the same product.
